

Read the passage and answer the questions that follow:

I don't exactly remember how I was conceived. I was carved out from a piece of paper along with other siblings of mine. I was marked with a picture of twig being held by a dove. A kid bought me from a post office for five bucks. His father asked him to paste me on an envelope. I heard him saying that the envelope wouldn't reach his destination without me. I felt happy that I was important.

The next day, the kid was carrying me somewhere and all of a sudden I felt like falling in the dark. Soon I realised I was left at the letter-box. I spent the night there with other envelopes carrying few of my friends.

The day after, a peon came, lifted us and dropped us in his bag. The bag was smelling foul. Somehow we survived the journey. When the peon took us out from the bag, I recognised the place instantly. I was brought there soon after my birth, the post office.

The next few days was all about travelling and also about many 'firsts' in my life. I rode an aeroplane for the first time. I lost track of day and night.
