

Class-VII

Class Test (29.11.24)

Full Marks- 10

1. How might societal stereotypes about gender roles influence a young girl's choice of subjects in school?

- A) They encourage girls to pursue their interests freely.
- B) They limit girls to subjects deemed appropriate for their gender.
- C) They have no impact on educational choices.
- D) They promote equal participation in all subjects.

2. If a woman in agriculture is not recognized as a farmer, what broader societal issue does this reflect?

- A) The invisibility of women's contributions in various sectors.
- B) The increasing number of women in leadership roles.
- C) The equal distribution of labor in agriculture.
- D) The rise of technology in farming practices.

3. In what way can education serve as a tool for women to challenge societal norms?

- A) By providing them with traditional skills only.
- B) By enabling them to understand and question stereotypes.
- C) By limiting their career options.
- D) By reinforcing gender-specific roles.

4. What is a potential benefit of challenging stereotypes about women's roles in society?

- A) It can lead to a more equitable distribution of opportunities.
- B) It may create confusion about gender roles.
- C) It reinforces traditional views of gender.
- D) It has no significant impact on society.

5. In the context of the Gonds, which factor contributed to the emergence of social classes within their society?

- A) The introduction of foreign trade
- B) The establishment of large states and land grants to Brahmanas
- C) The migration of artisans from neighboring regions
- D) The influence of nomadic tribes

6. Which of the following best describes the relationship between nomadic pastoralists and settled agriculturists?

- A) They were in constant conflict over land
- B) They engaged in mutually beneficial exchanges
- C) They had no interaction due to geographical barriers
- D) They formed a single unified community

7. Rokeya Hossain's 'Ladyland' is not just a story of dreaming, also has huge explanatory implication in women empowerment- Justify. (2)

8. Topography is always influencing the socio- economic life of human being- Support the statement only by giving examples from Ganga- Brahmaputra basin. (2)