It was a quiet Christmas Eve. A soft wind blew through the town, and the streets were covered with snow. In a small house near the market, there lived a poor family. The children were excited because Christmas brings hope and happiness to everyone. On the table lay a simple cake and a few candles. The mother lit a candle and said a prayer. Suddenly, there was a knock at the door. The father opened the door and saw an old man standing outside with a bag. The old man gave the family a warm blanket and an apple for each child. He smiled and wished them a Merry Christmas. The children thanked the old man with joy in their eyes.

That night, the house was filled with peace. It was a Christmas that taught them the true meaning of sharing and love.
